

Hiring for Summer Interviewer/Advocate Positions

Are you looking for a really interesting summer job that allows you to work from where you plan to live this summer? Would you like to be part of efforts to better understand hunger in Missouri & Kansas?

The University of Missouri Interdisciplinary Center for Food Security is hiring interviewers to help administer surveys in food pantries across Missouri, Kansas, and parts of Illinois. Interviewers will be part of a larger project in collaboration with Feeding Missouri, the Kansas Health Foundation, and the Kansas Food Bank. The work that is done on this project will help regional food banks in Missouri and Kansas better serve food insecure households in their regions.

TIME COMMITMENT: 20-40 hours/week, mostly weekdays, perhaps an occasional Saturday

PAY: $11.00/hour (Travel time and interviewing time) + mileage reimbursement

TERM: May-July 2021 (Will begin review of applications and interviews March 26th)

REQUIREMENTS:

- Valid driver's license and reliable transportation
- Ability to communicate thoughtfully and effectively with food pantry clients
- Good time management skills and self-motivated

POSITION DUTIES:

- Completion of IRB Training
- Participation in interviewer training
- Coordination of travel and data collection schedule with Regional Coordinator
- Travel to identified food pantries within assigned region
- Recruit survey participants
- Support food pantry clients in completing surveys
- Conduct follow-up phone interviews with food pantry clients
- Enter surveys into online data platform
- Potential for overnight stays dependent on travel requirements (lodging and per diem provided for extended trips)

If interested, please send a resume and short cover letter to Darren Chapman
(dchapman@missouri.edu)

